This week we got started on the rover wiring and are getting close to being able to start up the wheel motors so that we can quickly get the rover ready to be videotaped for the March 1 deadline. I have been working specifically on the wiring aspects from the motors and also I have been working with Shivam some this past weekend on setting up Static IPs on the RPIs. I have also been running the numbers on the power budget to get a clearer image of battery needs so that we can get final estimates on everything.
